Impact of COVID-19 on Global Immigration

2 September 2020

Building a better
working world

Important notes

- This document provides a snapshot of the policy changes that have been announced in jurisdictions around the world in response to the COVID-19 crisis. It is designed to support conversations about policies that have been proposed or implemented in key jurisdictions
- Policy changes across the globe are being proposed and implemented on a daily basis. This document is updated on an ongoing basis but not all entries will be up-to-date as the process moves forward. In addition, not all jurisdictions are reflected in this document
- Find the most current version of this tracker on ey.com
- Please consult with your EY engagement team to check for new developments

EY teams have developed additional trackers to help you follow changes:

- ▶ Force Majeure
- ▶ Global Mobility
- ▶ Global Tax Policy
- ▶ Global Trade Considerations
- ▶ Labor and Employment Law
- ▶ Tax Controversy
- ▶ US State and Local Taxes

EY professionals are updating the trackers regularly as the situation continues to develop.

Overview/key issues

- With the crisis evolving rapidly at different stages globally, government authorities continue to impose immigration-related measures to limit the spread of the COVID-19 pandemic and protect the health and safety of individuals in and outside of their jurisdictions.
- Measures to stem the spread of COVID-19 include the following:
 - Entry restrictions and heightened admission criteria for certain populations (including prohibitions on entry from high-risk locations)
 - Mandatory “stay-home notices” and quarantine orders for newly admitted citizens, residents and visitors (whether in state facilities, hotels or private residences)
 - Temporary suspension (and in some cases, permanent cancelation) of existing (valid) visas issued prior to COVID-19 and suspension of issuance of new visas
 - Introduction of heightened eligibility criteria and application requirements where visas are being issued (including suspension of visa waiver agreements and enhanced document requirements for new applications)
- Some governments are announcing flexible policies to prevent temporary residents who are unable to travel from becoming overstayers under immigration laws, and enabling virtual right to work checking.

Next steps

Key immigration risk focus areas include:

- Business continuity remains a key risk with globally mobile workforce grounded
- Application/visa processing center closures may mean that moves either have to be put on hold or withdrawn
- Multiple layers of restrictions impact decisions around globally mobile workforces
- Loss of physical presence is impacting right to work checking
- Employees who are abroad are at risk of technically overstaying beyond their permitted period of stay
- Stranded/separated workforces and family members
- Remote workers are unable to carry out productive work

Preparing for what comes next:

- Where lockdowns are not yet in force, companies should prepare guidelines/policies for globally mobile employees, including exit strategies for travelers stuck abroad (to go into effect when travel restrictions start to lift)
- Companies should become informed on flexible government policies and confirm their ability to continue to file/submit applications for processing to avoid a backlog when COVID-19 related restrictions are lifted
- Companies should prioritize moves that are critical to ensure the health and safety of employees, as well as those that are critical to business continuity
- Companies should consider personal/unique circumstances of individuals and any heightened risk factors
- Companies should assess risks and potential impacts to determine response measures and priorities
